CAROLINE BARTLETT CRANE.

In 1889, Rev. Caroline Bartlett was called to Kalamazoo, Mich., as min-ister of a small Unitarian church.

Within a few years she had established a large Sunday school, a kindergarten, a gymnasium for women, a manual training department, and a domestic science department. A short time later she married Dr.

Crane, one of the most prominen physicians in the city. Becoming interested in the civic problems of Kalamazoo, she studied the questions of water supply, plumbing the sew-age system, the cleaning of streets, the condition of grocery stores and meat markets. Other cities in Michigan-Saginaw, Big Rapids, Calumet and Bay City engaged her for inspections and investigations. Her

URSULINE NUNS TAUGHT LESSONS

The ministrations of woman individually and in community, have been a wonder-spot of light in the darkness of humanity's warring passion. From the first "Deaconess" mention-ed in the New Testament, "Phoebe, a Cenchrea,"; to Florence Nightingale and Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago; through all the many Orders and Sisterhoods of the churches, the world had been brightened, because the ministering woman has been in it The Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul went ankle deep in blood to find the wounded on the battlefields of the Crimean War. Devoted woman seems to have gained the calm power in great crisis which stern man might envy. The Ursuline Order of Sisters. whose notable Convent was burned on August 11, 1834, was founded by 1537. Its patron saint was St. Ursula, a Cornish Princess of the Franco St. Urusia with 11,000 women, was massacred at Cologne by the Huns. The Cathedrai of Cologne, which the cannon of the Allies spared last year, famous for its Gothis grandeur, is the shrine of the bones of these de-voted women of the early church. The work of the Ursuline nuns today is the work of the education of girls.

AT ST. STEPHEN'S

Fine Program Enjoyed By Several Hundred People.

Several hundred people attended the third semi-weekly bazaar held by St. Stephen's R. C. church on the church grounds at Spruce and Bostwick avenue last evening.

The affair began about 7 o'clock and continued until 11. During that time articles were sold at the booths and many things were auctioned off. An exceptional and varied program was offered. The first number was a song and dance entitled ":Fond Mothers," by the small children of the parish ranging in ages from four to six years. The costumes were white dresses and pink hats. Each little girl carried a doll to which she sang. The work of training the totalis due to the untiring efforts of Sister Francis of the Order of Divine Char-This number was encored sev eral times.

A Japanese dance by the older girls was the next feature. Japanese ki-monas vari-colored flowers in the hair, white fans and paper parasols made the number very attractive. This dance was directed by the Mother Superior of the Convent, music by Miss Jennie Sandor, Miss Madelyn Farley gave vocal selections Another interesting feature was 12 little fellows, who gave an imitation of Italian bootblacks. They were very well received.

THE NEW CLOTHES

The generous use of fur, not only on coats but on strictly evening models as well, is interesting.

There is a large collar of mole on a Pompetian red duvetyn odel finished with a handsome fringe of the same shade. This fringe is about 12 inches deep and not only knotted but darned in manner to produce a Mexican openwork design border.

Another model in the same color and cloth has large triangular panels of beaver arranged at an odd angle at either side. There is a broken beltline and the collar and cuffs are also of fur.

Mole is used for the collar and cuffs on a fawn color coat featuring chenille and floss handwork designed into linking circles at either side back and front at the bottom. Novelty pockets consist of double links of this embroidery appliqued on.

A tiny band of golden pheasant binds the brim edge of a small ing shape of golden brown velvet, the band ending in tails off the side brim. There is also a small soft felt sports hat of reseda green, turning the brim against the crown and pulling it wide on each side. Around the crown is a thick band of floss threads in the same color as the felt and these terminate on tassel of the threads that hangs down on the hair.

Beat 4 yolks of eggs, 3 tablespoonfuls of saiad oil, 6 tablespoonfuls of vinegar, 1 tablespoonful of dry mustard blended in 1 tablespoonful of vinegar, 2 teaspoonfuls of sait, 2 1-2 tablespoonfuls of sugar. Melt piece of butter size of an egg; use a pinch of paprika. Add each ingredient separately and beat with a fork. Place the above in a double boiler and boil for 2 minutes, or to the consistency of custard. Then cool. When ready to serve, stir in 1-2 cup of heavy cream or more, according to taste.

OATMEAL DROP CAKES

Two-thirds cup brown sugar, 8 tablespoons shortening, 2 eggs, 2 cups rye flour, 2 cups rolled oats, 1 teaspoon soda, 1-2 teaspoon sait, 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon, nutmeg and allspice, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1 handful chopped nuts, 12 cup liquid (coffee, milk or water can be used). Mix well and drop from spoon on greased pans. Batter will be quite stiff.

ROSE LEAF MARMALADE

A marmalade of delicate and del icious flavor may be made from equal parts of fresh rose, leaves, strawberry, rhubarb and sugar. Place the rhubarb, cut in small pieces, in the bottom of your kettle, then sprinkle on the sugar, then the rose leaves. Let stand over night, covered. In the morning stew gently until thick, then seal, as you would any marmalade.

MODERN SCIENCE and the FAMILY WASHING

Modern science has done wonders in perfecting American industries, and in no branch of industry has it been developed to a greater degree than in power laundry work.

The National Laundry Owners' Association maintains constantly at the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, a corps of experts engaged in scientific investigation into methods and materials which will improve the service of power laundries for their customers.

The laundry research work now in progress there embraces special studies of the fibres of which clothes are woven; the chemical nature of various kinds of dirt; the composition and cleansing power of soaps; the effects of heat and friction upon the texture and strength of raiment; the action of dies in connection with laundry processes, and the classification of soiled fabrics as to color, texture and nature and extent of soiling.

Still another branch of the investigation relates to the important work of sanitation, and the most effective destruction of disease germs.

All of this work is done in the interests of the many families whom the power laundry serve. It is carried on at tremendous expense in order to help us to meet every problem which enters into superior laundry work. And it is only in the power laundry that it is done at all.

The help and suggestions which have come from this extensive research work, combined with the splendid progress which power laundry work has made in recent years, make it possible for the power laundry to do better work now than ever before.

For the woman who wants to escape the drudgery of washing, the one satisfactory solution is to send the family laundry to the power laundry. Many have attempted to solve wash day troubles by various means. The satisfactory way is to phone for the laundry wagon, and let the efficient power laundry do the work.
